

Daily Reflections

April 14, 2019

---

Scripture

Luke 23: 1-49

The elders of the people, chief priests and scribes, arose and brought Jesus before Pilate.

They brought charges against him, saying, "We found this man misleading our people; he opposes the payment of taxes to Caesar and maintains that he is the Christ, a king."

Pilate asked him, "Are you the king of the Jews?"

He said to him in reply, "You say so."

Pilate then addressed the chief priests and the crowds, "I find this man not guilty."

But they were adamant and said,

"He is inciting the people with his teaching throughout all Judea, from Galilee where he began even to here."

On hearing this Pilate asked if the man was a Galilean; and upon learning that he was under Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod who was in Jerusalem at that time.

Herod was very glad to see Jesus;

he had been wanting to see him for a long time, for he had heard about him and had been hoping to see him perform some sign.

He questioned him at length,

but he gave him no answer.

The chief priests and scribes, meanwhile,
stood by accusing him harshly.

Herod and his soldiers treated him contemptuously and mocked him,
and after clothing him in resplendent garb,
he sent him back to Pilate.

Herod and Pilate became friends that very day, even though they had been enemies formerly.

Pilate then summoned the chief priests, the rulers, and the people and said to them, "You brought this man to me and accused him of inciting the people to revolt.

I have conducted my investigation in your presence and have not found this man guilty of the charges you have brought against him, nor did Herod, for he sent him back to us.

So no capital crime has been committed by him.

Therefore I shall have him flogged and then release him."

But all together they shouted out,

"Away with this man!

Release Barabbas to us."

— Now Barabbas had been imprisoned for a rebellion that had taken place in the city and for murder. —

Again Pilate addressed them, still wishing to release Jesus, but they continued their shouting,

"Crucify him! Crucify him!"

Pilate addressed them a third time,

"What evil has this man done?

I found him guilty of no capital crime.

Therefore I shall have him flogged and then release him."

With loud shouts, however,

they persisted in calling for his crucifixion,
and their voices prevailed.

The verdict of Pilate was that their demand should be granted.

So he released the man who had been imprisoned for rebellion and murder, for whom they asked,

and he handed Jesus over to them to deal with as they wished.

As they led him away

they took hold of a certain Simon, a Cyrenian, who was coming in from the country;

and after laying the cross on him,
they made him carry it behind Jesus.

A large crowd of people followed Jesus, including many women who mourned and lamented him.

Jesus turned to them and said,

"Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me;
weep instead for yourselves and for your children for indeed, the days are coming when people will say,
'Blessed are the barren,
the wombs that never bore
and the breasts that never nursed.'

At that time people will say to the mountains,
'Fall upon us!'

and to the hills, 'Cover us!'

for if these things are done when the wood is green what will happen when it is dry?"

Now two others, both criminals, were led away with him to be executed.

When they came to the place called the Skull,
they crucified him and the criminals there,
one on his right, the other on his left.

Then Jesus said,

"Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."

They divided his garments by casting lots.

The people stood by and watched;

the rulers, meanwhile, sneered at him and said,

"He saved others, let him save himself
if he is the chosen one, the Christ of God."

Even the soldiers jeered at him.

As they approached to offer him wine they called out,

"If you are King of the Jews, save yourself."

Above him there was an inscription that read,

"This is the King of the Jews."

Now one of the criminals hanging there reviled Jesus, saying,

"Are you not the Christ?"

Save yourself and us."

The other, however, rebuking him, said in reply,

"Have you no fear of God,
for you are subject to the same condemnation?
And indeed, we have been condemned justly,
for the sentence we received corresponds to our crimes,
but this man has done nothing criminal."

Then he said,

"Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom."

He replied to him,

"Amen, I say to you, today you will be with me in Paradise."

It was now about noon and darkness came over the whole land until three in the afternoon because of an eclipse of the sun.

Then the veil of the temple was torn down the middle.

Jesus cried out in a loud voice,

"Father, into your hands I commend my spirit";
and when he had said this he breathed his last.

Here all kneel and pause for a short time.

The centurion who witnessed what had happened glorified God and said,
"This man was innocent beyond doubt."

When all the people who had gathered for this spectacle saw what had happened,
they returned home beating their breasts;
but all his acquaintances stood at a distance, including the women who had followed him from Galilee and saw these events.

---

Our Scripture Reflection

In Luke's beautiful passion account there is one detail that has always touched my heart and given me hope: The story of Jesus' dialogue with the Good Criminal. You obviously know how difficult it is to be good and kind when you are hurting or in pain. When I have a common cold I have no desire to be around anyone! Jesus was on the cross enduring indescribable pain, abandoned by His closest "friends", mocked by the crowds and having to watch His Mother witness it all! However, when asked for a favor from a criminal, Jesus' words could not have been sweeter: "Today, you will be with me in Paradise." Only a heart filled with divine love and compassion could produce such tender words. His words humble me.

---

Food for your Journey

"Patience" and "passion" both come from a Latin word meaning to suffer or endure. When we speak of the Passion of Christ, we are recalling the suffering he endured on the cross. But it is good to realize that whenever we practice patience -- cheerfully bearing with somebody who is irascible, or enduring discomfort rather than imposing it on others -- in a small way, we are embracing the principle of the Passion. Each of us can bear a little of such self-denial, and, with practice, our shoulders can grow broad enough to carry some of the burden of those we love. In this way, the mystics tell us, by practicing mercy throughout our lives, we take upon ourselves some of Jesus' burden of pain.

--Sri Eknath Easwaran, Original Goodness: Eknath Easwaran on the Beatitudes (Nilgiri Press, 1996), 196.

---

A Prayer from the Heart

Dear God, I am not worthy of what Your Son did for me on Calvary. I want to show my gratitude for His suffering and death by loving those who are difficult to love. Amen